

Discount Rx card: How it works

National Benefit Builders, Inc. (NBBI) is a for-profit company, established in 2001, with the highest rating from the Better Business Bureau. NBBI developed an outreach program called the America's Drug Card (ADC). The ADC program was established in response to the many requests that NBBI receives for assistance for the uninsured and underinsured with their prescription needs.

Through our network of Reps, the America's Drug Card gives away free discount prescription cards to as many people who could benefit. Our Reps contact places such as social service agencies, government agencies, mental health clinics, hospitals, and doctors' offices to see if they would like a supply of our discount prescription cards to distribute to the people that they serve. Our Reps also answer questions about how to use the cards, help people compare drug prices if there is no internet access available, and help people find the closest pharmacies. Also, the America's Drug Card can assist larger organizations in fundraising using the prescription cards. We also have a card branding program available for larger organizations. ADC never charges for these outreach services.

The prescription cards are accepted at over 80% of pharmacies in the US and its territories. Savings average 15% on brand name medications, and 55% on generic medications. Anyone can use the card, regardless of age or income. They assist the uninsured the most, but can benefit people who are insured when they need a drug that is not reimbursable, such as fertility drugs. Seniors benefit when they fall into the Medicare Part D coverage gap.

If you know of any organization that is in need of ongoing funds to help those who can benefit, please pass along my contact information, so that they may apply for the fundraising program.

We provide our discount prescription cards to such places as the Department of Vocational Rehab, the USDA, NAMI, Forgotten Harvest, Homeboy Industries, Childhood Leukemia Foundation, LUPE, CALIF, churches, clinics, healthcare providers, and hospitals, to name a few.

Hopefully, we have answered any questions you may have about the ADC discount prescription card program. If you need additional help or information, please feel free to contact me via the information listed below. We hope we can be of assistance to your organization.
